RAISE IN GAS TAX, AUTO LICENSES LOOMS!

FULL DATA ON AGREEMENT DESIRED

Senate Resolution to Seek Complete Information On Paris Pact

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The denial by Secretary of State Hughes that the United States is "neither legally nor morally" committed to help the allies enforce the Dawes reparations plan upon Germany by signing the Kellogg-Churchill agreement did not satisfy the Senate irreconcilables today. They proceeded with their plans to pass a resolution tomorrow demanding "full information" concerning the much discussed Paris pact.

The old anti-league forces regard Hughes' statement as simply "an unofficial interpretation" which European nations might or might not accept if matters came to a show down.

Question Method

The Johnson resolution requesting Hughes to furnish the Senate with a complete copy of the agreement, which is to be called up tomorrow, probably will be amended to demand specific information as to whether, before signing, Ambassador Kellogg did or did not make a futile effort to attach a reservation to the agreement preserving American freedom of action in any issue arising out of the operation of the agreement.

Considerable mystery attaches to this reported reservation. Press dispatches from Paris asserted positively Kellogg made such a proposal and that it was promptly turned down by the allied representatives on the ground that if the United States became a partner in the receipts under the Dawes plan, the United States became also a partner in every aspect of the pact.

When the reported Kellogg reservation was called to the attention of the state department on Friday, it was denied flatly that Kellogg had proposed any such reservation.

Offset Argument

If, said Senate irreconcilables today, the United States is not committed to do anything but share in the Dawes annuities, they cannot understand why the representatives of Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium objected to a statement to that effect being incorporated in the agreement.

And if, on the other hand, Kellogg did not propose the reported reservation, they want to know what assurance is contained in the agreement that the United States will not be called upon to help enforce the Dawes plan should Germany default.

Senator Borah, Senator Johnson of California, and Senator Reed of Missouri, all plan to speak on this point when the state department complies with the resolution demanding "full information."

The Senate took its first official notice of the Paris pact today when Senator Borah asked and received unanimous consent to have Secretary Hughes' statement printed in the Record.

AGREEMENT IS RECOGNITION OF AMERICA

Peace Treaty Entanglement Straightened Out by Reparations Plans

By FRANK E. MASON
For International News Service.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—The Paris reparations agreement not only does not entangle the United States in European affairs, but it is the first actual recognition by the European powers of America's separate peace treaty with Germany, it was declared today by a high authority.

"We have just succeeded in straightening out the serious entanglement arising from the conflict between Versailles and Berlin," this authority declared.

The attacks of the American "irreconcilables" against the Logan agreement are actually levelled against a hard-won allied recognition of the legitimacy of the "irreconcilables' own child, namely, the Berlin treaty," it was further said.

It was pointed out that the Logan agreement treats the Versailles and Berlin treaties equally. The allied claims will be settled through the Versailles reparations commission and the American claims through the Berlin treaty mixed claims commission.

LINK SENATOR WITH LARGE RUM RING

Alleged Purchase of Liquor From Solon Described In New Jersey Case

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Senator Edward I. Edwards is willing to take the witness stand in his own defense to deny all charges made against him by government prohibition agents in the New Jersey liquor scandal, he told International News Service this afternoon.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 20.—Lionel Wilson, a treasury department general agent, testified today in the Weehawken rum running trial here that United States Senator Edward I. Edwards, Democrat, had arranged to sell him and another agent liquor and that he had seen $3800 paid the senator for 100 cases of Scotch whiskey. Wilson ventured the belief that the senator was the director of the bootlegging ring he said operated at the foot of Baldwin avenue in Weehawken.

The witness testified that he and Charles Hurlbut, another federal agent, posed as bootleggers and visited Edwards at the latter's home in Caldwell, N. J., just before the scandal was revealed. There, he added, they arranged with the senator and with William Griffin, accused of being one of the rum ring directors, for the purchase of 100 cases of Scotch whiskey. Wilson said Hurlbut handed Edwards $3800 for the liquor.

Tells About Seal

"After my arrangements with Senator Edwards in his home in Caldwell, N. J., I and my partner, Charles Hurlbut, called at his bank, saw Senator Edwards, and, in my presence Hurlbut handed $3800, to Senator Edwards for 100 cases of Scotch," said Wilson.

Wilson testified he knew Griffin and that he had gone to Griffin's office to make arrangements to buy 100 cases of Scotch whiskey at $38 a case. He said:

"I wanted some assurance about delivery and also that the stuff was not cut. Griffin said: 'If you know who was backing me and who I am connected with, you would need no more assurance. I don't mind telling you, it's Senator Edwards'."

Denied By Senator

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The charges of Lionel Wilson, a treasury agent, that Senator Edwards, Democrat, of New Jersey, received a $3800 bribe, wer denounced today by the senator as a "political frame-up." Edwards told the International News Service he would make no other reply to the sensational testimony given at the Weehawken rum conspiracy trial.

"I am not concerned with the testimony given by prohibition agents at the Weehawken trial," said Edwards. "It is just a case of politics. They have tried to frame me for years but you can rest assured they haven't succeeded.

"That is why I am so bitter against prohibition. They are always trying to frame innocent people. I don't care to make any other reply to the charges."

DAWES PLAN

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Seymour Parker Gilbert, jr., agent-general for reparations, officially reported today that the first four months in which the Dawes annuities plan has been functioning in Germany showed receipts totalling 286,263,444 gold marks.

Woman Governor of Texas Asks Good Will and Prayers As Political Rule Begins

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 20.—Asking for the good will and prayers of the women of Texas in her trail-blazing journey of feminine rule, but refraining from any attempt at revealing her plans or policies, Mrs. Miriam Amanda Ferguson shortly after noon today, in the briefest message of its kind in Texas history, read to the joint Legislature her inaugural address of acceptance. Mrs. Ferguson said in part:

"I extend to the judges of the courts, the heads of departments and especially the members of the legislature, a cordial and earnest invitation to visit the executive offices for conferences on matters personal and official. We are all human servants of a great people and we must do our best for the common good.

"Recognizing and freely admitting my inexperience in governmental affairs, I must ask the advice and counsel of others.

"Perhaps this would not be a bad idea for others to adopt, even though their training and learning may be more than mine. I shall endeavor to make this administration a success by team work. There is so much to do that no one mind can bring relief to the people.

"If the example can be set for a higher standard of morals and purity of life and conduct in public servants of the people, I shall feel that my administration has not been in vain.

"As the first woman governor of our beloved state, I ask for the good will and the prayers of the women of Texas.

"Many women will be invited to take an active part in this administration.

"Let us give to our state the best that is in us, not so much because we are women, but because we are citizens who are now to stand side by side with the men upon the foundation of equal rights and equal justice.

"With love for all, with malice toward none, trusting in God, I consecrate my life to my state."

'MA' FERGUSON TAKES OATH OF OFFICE

Inaugural Ceremony Held In Texas Capitol Today; Watch Experiment

By KENNETH CLARK
For International News Service.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 20.—Texas today began an experiment unexampled in the political history of the United States.

The precedent was not so much in the inauguration today of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson as first woman governor of the state as in the belief generally expressed that her stewardship will be more specious than solid, that her husband, ex-Governor James E. Ferguson, impeached six years ago, will be in reality the chief executive of Texas—"the ruling power behind the throne."

Mrs. Ferguson is not the first woman governor in the country; she lost that honor to Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming. But it is certainly unusual if one should be governor in name but not in fact.

Wife Will Rule

The Fergusons themselves were the first to deny that Jim will be governor in his wife's name.

"That is absolutely unfair, and there is not a word of truth in it," declared Ferguson. "I will help my wife, of course, but she will be governor in every sense of the word. Time will prove that statement. Mark what I say."

Because of his previous experience as governor, Mrs. Ferguson declared that, naturally, she would consult her husband frequently on matters of state.

Live in Mansion

The Fergusons today took up residence in the executive mansion, from which they were driven by "Jim's" impeachment. Ferguson will live there during his wife's reign, but will not have an office in the capitol. Because of his impeachment, he is not permitted to hold state office.

Downtown Ferguson has established an office. He announced he has received a retainer from Sugarland, Tex., people, and will devote himself to their interests. He will also carry a key to the executive office.

Walsh Oil Probe Is Approved by Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Seven months after the close of the famous oil investigation, the Senate this afternoon gave its formal approval to the Walsh report flaying the Doheny and Sinclair leases and bitterly assailed former Secretary of the Interior Fall.

The report filed last June by Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat of Montana, chief oil "prosecutor" was opposed by administration senators because of its attack on Secretary Denby and its declaration that President Harding had acted "without authority by law" in transferring the oil reserves from the navy to the interior department. The Walsh report was adopted by a vote of 40 to 30.

Deputy Claims Students Are Given Training; Treaty Violation Charged

By S. D. WEYER
For International News Service.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—The Reichstag was thrown into a violent uproar and tumult reigned when Social Democrat Deputy Breitscheid attacked Minister of War Gessler today "for training students in temporary military courses."

"While the training of the students was a violation of the Versailles treaty," said Breitscheid, "certainly the action was no menace toward France."

At this the National deputy, Henning, interrupted with a shout: "Your speech is being paid for by France."

A wild tumult of shouting followed. Henning was called to order. When order was restored, Breitscheid charged that Minister of Trade Neuhaus, a Nationalist, had entered the cabinet "because he considered the cabinet a step toward monarchy."

SPECIAL ROAD COMMITTEE AGREES ON INCREASE

Classification of Highways Cause of Hot Fight Behind Closed Doors

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 20.—Virtually agreed on recommending an increase of 1 cent per gallon in the gasoline tax and a $2 jump in the automobile registration fees, Governor Richardson's special highway committee was fighting behind closed doors today over the classification of roads in the report.

The scheme followed by the committee thus far has been to include practically all proposed roads in its recommendations but to classify them as to the time when they shall be constructed.

In the first classification are included highways which would be built at once and are said to be all main trunk roads. The southern members of the committee, led by E. E. East of Los Angeles, are reported to be battling for specifications of certain main trunk highways which would be constructed first.

Southland Fights

The roads for which the Los Angeles group is fighting are said to be interstate connections which feed into Southern California.

In the second classification the committee is said to have placed highways connecting county seats and other lateral units.

District roads, such as the bay shore highway, are listed in the third classification, it is reported, and the San Francisco members of the committee are reported to be fighting to have this road listed for earlier construction.

BURBANK NEWS

BURBANK, Jan. 20.—More land is needed, it is felt, in order to make the offer of a site here sufficiently attractive to the U. of C., southern branch. At the present time negotiations are under way to obtain additional acreage, and it is understood that the McClure property, adjoining the present 410 acres available, has been offered. It will take approximately $100,000 to handle this property, according to Ralph O. Church, chairman of the site committee. The offer of Fullerton and Orange county of a 1000-acre tract, two miles of paved streets and a sewer outlet to the ocean, and the so-called Huntington site, offered by South Pasadena, further complicate the matter for Burbank, and have the effect of convincing the site committee that this city will have to enlarge its acreage in order to successfully compete with the sites of other cities.

The city trustees have been asked by the Chamber of Commerce to provide for taking the official census of Burbank. This action was taken because it is believed the population of the city is above 12,000 at the present time, whereas the United States census of 1920 places it as only 2950.

At the annual meeting of the Citizens' committee of Burbank the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, A. E. W. Yale; treasurer, H. W. Carter; secretary, W. S. Walker.

F. S. Webster is at his post again at the city clerk's office, after having been confined to his home for some days on account of a severe cold.

Horrell to Coach at L. A. High Next Year

Babe Horrell, who captained the University of California football squad through its fifth consecutive undefeated season, has agreed to sign as football coach at Los Angeles High school for next season when the school board passes around the contracts next July. Bruce Kirkpatrick, 1924 coach, will teach school at Fairfax next year.

By waiting until July to sign the papers, Horrell preserves his standing as an amateur at University of California, and complies with the custom observed by local high schools of waiting until after school lets out to secure new coaches. Horrell has generously been accredited the star of the Bear eleven during the past season, and earned a place on several All-American first, second and third teams.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

A San Francisco girl has confessed the murder of her mother.

It is a most unusual case, in some respects, and very common in others. The facts present a cross section of the jazz life of today which intrigues the youth, particularly those who are not well grounded in philosophy and religion.

In the olden days scholars gave unto their pupils a good deal of philosophical advice along with the three r's. Today teachers, who have drifted away from high purposes and under a political pedagogic system give daily doses of prescribed education, do not think enough of their young charges to take the time and trouble to guide them in paths of learning far from the primrose path.

Bits from a diary of the Ellingson girl at San Francisco showed flashes of brilliancy, but her economic position—that of being a daughter of a tailor—did not give her the opportunity to have those things she craved. And renouncing jewels for the tawdry love of dance-hall sheiks she soon was bedraggled in the mire of selfishness.

Those who have read the San Francisco case, and particularly those who "know" enough to read between the lines, are in position, perhaps, to save someone near and dear to them.

But little knowledge is worse than no knowledge at all. Take the boy from the country and place him in the city—and see what happens. Take the girl from a religious family and allow her an ounce of freedom—and she will demand more than is her righteous share.

Would that there were some compensating reward for those who do what is right. Peace of mind and promises of a pleasant hereafter do not measure up to the thrills, in the minds of many, and the speculation as to how much their bodies are worth in brimstone.

The fact that this strange murder occurred in San Francisco frees Los Angeles from the stigma of another scandal. And yet only a week ago the papers of Northern California were crying for something in the way of "blood and thunder," the legislature not providing them with a thrill.

Romance of Year Ends In Tragedy; Man Held

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 20.—The romance of Mrs. Emily Bush, 23, a beautiful blonde girl, and Frank Michaels, 26, each of whom left their married mates to live together, ended in black tragedy today when the woman's body, clad only in silk pajamas and with one hand clutching a cheap sex magazine, was found in bed at their apartment on the North Side today.

Although no trace of violence could be discerned, police said the case did not appear to be suicide and ordered Michaels held for the coroner's inquest into the death.

An announcement of what has been done was expected within a few days. It was reported relations between the schools as far as track and baseball were concerned might be resumed this season.

Look for It First at Pendroy's

It requires no special gift to prophesy what miss and madam will wear abroad this Spring. The one outfit omnipresent is the ensemble suit—that combination of frock and coat does its duty completely morning and afternoon. The most popular type has a three-quarter length jacket made on slightly flaring lines bordered or adorned with the same decorative feature the dress has. Buttons a'plenty and contrasting bindings are noted; also a narrow scarf collar that forms a choker in chilly weather when the wind blows.

Glimpses Into the New Mode

In the great Review of Spring Fashions there are many little details of utmost importance that may slip by without attracting your attention, unless they are pointed out to you. They are details of line, trimming and color that give a costume "that indescribable something" which to a woman spells style.

Every Variety of Flare

A delightful change has come over the familiar silhouette. This change is achieved by flared effects. There is the low placed flare, appearing low at the sides, the front flare, the flared tunic and the rippling slightly flared hemline.

The Plea for Pleats

Right in step with the vogue for flares comes the vogue for pleats. The pleats are just one surprise right after another. First you see pleated godets, next pleated apron effects, and still again pleated collars and cuffs. There's no end to their fashion use.

Kasha Takes Lead

Kasha—king of the Spring fabrics. The importance of Kasha in dresses, coats and ensembles cannot be stressed too much. In canary or mustard yellow, almond green, rose or a soft rust tone, the new Kashas are fascinating and Spring-like, indeed.

What's New in Collars

The scarf collar in numerous new forms continues to flourish. Fur scarf collars that tie on one shoulder are particularly smart. Then, too, there's the square collar to select from. Each is smart in its own way.

Spring Enters

An Pendroy's the curtain is gradually rising on the Spring Fashion Modes. Each day new gowns and wraps are spotlighted on the Spring fashion stage, and smart women are watching eagerly to see what the new modes will reveal. Many charming and authoritative styles are now on display in our second floor departments. Do come in to see them all.

New Frocks Make Their Bow

All eyes to center stage. Here are slim satin frocks with circular flounces near the hemlines. There's a Kasha street frock with the surplice line and one of the stunning new high collars. Don't miss the tea gowns with their pleated godets, their pleated apron fronts and their frilly pleated collars. Sharing honors with these leading frocks are the simple straight-line silk frocks richly trimmed with embroidery. $25 and up.

TELL CITY'S GREATEST NEEDS AT C. OF C. FORUM

AVENUE WORK SUGGESTED BY CITY

Glendale Highway Extension To Atwater Park Is Given Endorsement

The City Planning commission last night endorsed the plan to extend Glendale avenue south in a direct line to the intersection of Casitas avenue and Tyburn street, in the Atwater Park section of Los Angeles. This action was taken after J. F. McClish, chairman of the South Glendale avenue committee of the Glendale Advancement association, had appeared before the planners urging their aid in furthering this project. The meeting was held at the City Hall, Chairman T. W. Watson presiding.

The commission told Mr. McClish they would take up with the Los Angeles Planning commission the matter of the Glendale avenue extension, as the project rightly concerns both cities, offering a solution for a troublesome traffic problem.

There was hearing of protestants against the zoning of the Calla Lily Creamery Co. property at 725 Porter street as industrial Among the protestants were W. D. Baker and P. E. Gray. The creamery interests were represented by Edward Paggi, president. The commission took the matter under advisement for one week.

Recommendation was made to the City Council to deny applications for commercial districts at the corner of California avenue and Sycamore Canyon road, and on Adams street, just south of Colorado boulevard.

'Doctor' Sought After Glendalian Is Found

Southern California is being searched today for "Dr." C. E. McCullough of Pasadena, alleged "sunshine surgeon," and asserted purveyor of "health by radio," following the discovery of P. H. Holmgren of 335 Ivy street, Glendale, in his institution.

When discovered by Special Agent Albert Carter of the State Medical board, who raided the "sanitarium" on a warrant charging the doctor with practice of medicine without a license, Mr. Holmgren was found lying on a table in the rear yard, clothed principally in a pair of electrodes, which led to a radio set and aerial.

The mysterious appliance, Carter said, proved on examination to be harmless, as it was nothing more than a radio receiving set which had been sealed with wax. P. H. Holmgren is said to be a brother of Roy E. Holmgren of the same address on Ivy street. "Dr." McCullough is declared to have received from $100 to $500 from his patients, promising to "cure them of their ailments."

Old King Cole was a merry old soul. And there is nothing particularly significant about that except the tense.

ATWATER TO FIGHT INCINERATOR PLANT

Plan to Locate Structure on Bank Of River Results in Stormy Protests By Residents of District

Disclosure of plans to locate the new Los Angeles city incinerator plant on the east bank of the Los Angeles river between Los Feliz road and Glendale boulevard brought forth a storm of protest from residents of that district who attended the meeting of the Atwater Community Improvement association last night.

A petition voicing disapproval of such a plan and a hot letter of protest to the City Council were drawn up at the meeting. The former will be circulated for the signature of every resident in the district, according to plans.

Officers of the association, who refused to disclose their source of information, declared that A. H. Brainerd, land owner in the Atwater district, went before the finance committee of the City Council yesterday with an offer of fifteen acres of land in the river bed for the new city incinerator, funds for which were provided in a recent bond election.

Ask Glendale Aid

The land offered by Mr. Brainerd, it was stated by President Arthur M. Gilman, lies on the east bank of the river, closest to the Atwater and Glendale lines. It is a fifteen-acre tract running south from Los Feliz road toward the Glendale boulevard trestle. The price placed on this plat to the city was approximately $120,000, it was stated. Handsome and tempting overtures to the council to accept the offer of Mr. Brainerd were made, according to President Gilman.

Residents of the district voiced their strong opposition to any such plan at the meeting. Motions to circulate a petition for the signatures of all residents and empowering the secretary to address a letter of protest to the Los Angeles City Council were carried by unanimous vote.

Members of the executive committee of the association said today they would seek the aid of Glendale through its Chamber of Commerce and other agencies in combating any attempt to locate the incinerator in this vicinity. They pointed out that the waste disposal plant situated on the Brainerd land would be of equal undesirability to Glendale and expressed their belief that the larger city will join them in the fight.

LOCAL GIRL GETS DRAMATIC HONOR

Miss Mulligan to Be Seen In Leading Role In U. S. C. Play

Miss Genevieve Mulligan, 321 East Chestnut, a junior at the University of Southern California, will be seen in the leading role in the annual junior play, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," to be presented in Bovard auditorium Thursday night. William Hansen, 1213 Rossmoyne, also has a prominent part.

Miss Mulligan last week took part in "Everybody's Husband," which was staged by Zeta Phi Eta, honorary dramatic sorority, in the Touchstone Theatre. While a student at the Glendale High school, Miss Mulligan took a leading part in "Clarence." She is a student at the School of Speech, where she is preparing to become a teacher of dramatics. Mr Hansen is a transfer from the University of Illinois, where he was active in dramatics.

According to Miss Georgia S. Fink of the School of Speech, who is directing the production, the cast rates favorably with the original production which she saw in New York.

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" created a vogue for the mystery play and since its first production it has had many imitations. George M. Cohan produced the original play from a story by Earl Derr Biggers, one of the greatest successes New York has seen.

The play is creating a great deal of interest around Los Angeles and Harold Lloyd, film star, and Ernest Lubvitrch, motion picture director, are among the celebrities who have purchased tickets.

Snappy Boxing Bouts Feature of Elks' Jinks

Following a short business session at the lodge rooms last night, Glendale Elks participated in a big jinks program, featured by five snappy boxing bouts, staged under the direction of Johnny Myers of the Glendale fire department. In the main go Joe Kelly and Jimmie Marcus fought to a draw. Ralph Myers and Johnny Reno also drew in the semi-windup. Other bouts were: Bert McCoy won from Jimmie Murphy in the third on a technical knockout; Leo Vergus took a decision over Paul Negrett, and Bobby Pain was awarded a similar verdict over Bennie Diez. Johnny Myers refereed the first three bouts. The two main attractions were handled by Jack Messenger. Dan Kelty and Earl Garren compose the Elk committee in charge of the jinks affairs.

At the business session the Elks made plans for a visit to Pasadena lodge tonight, when Glendale officers will exemplify degree work to a class of Pasadena candidates. Prior to the lodge meeting Pasadena and Glendale officers will dine at the Vista Del Arroyo hotel.

Officers of Whittier lodge will initiate a class of candidates at the Glendale lodge rooms next Monday night. A dinner in honor of the Whittier lodgemen will take place at the Harriett Mae tea room before the ceremonies.

Stop That Backache!

Many Glendale Folks Have Found the Way.

Is a dull, nerve-racking backache wearing you out? Do you feel older and slower than you should? Are you tired, weak and nervous; find it impossible to be happy, or enjoy the good times around you? Then there's something wrong and likely it's your kidneys. Why not get at the cause? Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Your neighbors recommend Doan's. Read what this Glendale resident says:

Mrs. A. E. McClellan, 517 W. Dryden St., says: "My back was lame and there was a hurting through the small of it. When I stooped, sharp catches took me across my kidneys and for a time, it was difficult for me to get up or down. I tired with the least task and always had that tired, languid feeling. Dizziness, too, was another symptom. So I finally started using Doan's Pills from Roberts & Echols Drug Store and they eased my back and completely cured me of the trouble."

For Council

JAMES M. RHOADES, the first to receive more than fifty nominations in The Glendale Evening News nominations for City Council campaign, now being conducted.

When The Glendale Evening News announced that it would receive nominations for city councilmen, it was stated that all who received fifty or more nominations would have their pictures published, also a brief biography. It happens that James M. Rhoades was the first proposed candidate to receive fifty or more nominations, so his picture appears above and following is a brief story about him.

James M. Rhoades was born at Placerville, Calif., May 27, 1871. Shortly after his birth, his family moved to Cincinnati, Ohio, where Mr. Rhoades was reared, attending the Cincinnati Grammar and High schools.

In 1890 Mr. Rhoades returned west to Glendive, Mont., where he served as assessor for Dawson county from 1894 to 1896, and also engaged in the insurance business. He was appointed receiver for the United States land office by President McKinley in 1897, and was reappointed by President Roosevelt in 1900.

With the opening of the new century, Mr. Rhoades removed from Glendive to Missoula, Mont., and, until 1906, conducted a real estate and insurance business there. He then became right-of-ways and land agent for the Northern Pacific railroad, serving in this capacity until his election as mayor of Missoula in 1912. Mr. Rhoades held the high municipal office until 1914, when he became secretary-manager of the Bozeman, Mont., Chamber of Commerce.

Returns to California

Commencing in 1916, Mr. Rhoades spent two years as sergeant-at-arms in the Montana state Senate, retiring from this work to again enter the chamber of commerce field as secretary-manager at Everett, Wash.

Mr. Rhoades came to Long Beach in 1919 and in the spring of the following year was elected secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce. As executive head of the local body he served two and one-half years, retiring to enter the real estate and insurance business in partnership with Fred L. Smith, at 106 East Wilson avenue. A year ago he purchased the interest of Mr. Smith, and now conducts the business with his son under the name of James M. Rhoades & Son, handling real estate and insurance.

Mr. Rhoades resides with his wife at 329 East Chestnut street. He is a member of Glendale Elks' lodge, Odd Fellows' lodge, Masons, Shrine, and of the Glendale Realty board.

WORLD SERIES HERO VISITS GLENDALE

Casey Stengel and Bride, Former Local Girl, Back From Europe

"Casey at the Bat" Stengel, hero of 1923 World Series, fresh from a tour of Europe as a member of the National League pennant winners—McGraw's Giants—and husband of the former Edna Mae Lawson, of Glendale, whose father owns the Lawson building on Brand boulevard, dropped in on Glendale yesterday, with his bride of five months to spend the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Stengel are guests at the home of the bride's parents at the Castle apartments.

Casey Stengel probably is the most colorful figure in big league baseball today with the possible exception of Tyrus Raymond Cobb and the Big Bambino Ruth. His invaluable service as an outfielder has been demonstrated time and time again.

What is considered the greatest and most colorful review of a world series game had Casey in its leading role when Grantland Rice, New York sports writer, penned his now famous "Casey at the Bat" account of the World series game in 1923 at the Polo Grounds in New York, when Casey Stengel came to bat and slammed out a fence-jumper, winning the game for the Giants from the Yankees.

Dangerous Hitter

Casey Stengel is considered one of the most dangerous pinch-hitters over the big time lots. No less a baseball expert than "Mugsy" McGraw recognized Casey's ability along this line and Casey more than once, during his stay as a member of the pennant winning team, deserved all the confidence McGraw placed in him.

When seen in Glendale today by an Evening News reporter Casey recounted his trip through England, France, Belgium and Ireland as a member of the Giants touring Europe in exhibition games with Comiskey's White Sox of Chicago.

Casey explained that the chief reason why the Giants-White Sox games didn't "draw" as expected was because of the rain that fell almost incessantly during their seven weeks' stay in Europe.

Casey has come to Glendale to spend the winter to rest up for the strenuous season ahead on the diamond when he joins the Boston Braves in St. Petersburg, Florida, some time the last of February or first of March, to begin training for the 1925 season over the Big League circuit.

Mrs. Stengel accompanied her husband on his trip through Europe, which trip Casey characterized as a "delayed honeymoon mixed with the business of carrying to Europe the National pastime of the U. S."

OUTLINE PROGRAM FOR DEVELOPMENT

City Council Acts As Host At Dinner and Presents Varied Features For Benefit Of Large Gathering

Motion pictures showing the progress and process of Glendale's new sewer system; speeches where wit intercepted wisdom, introduction of city officials and prominent men of Glendale, orchestra music, community singing, tenor solos and an address filled with philosophy and humor marked the fourth monthly forum meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, held last night at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse.

Members of the City Council acted as hosts at the dinner and were in charge of the program which followed. President D. H. Smith of the Chamber of Commerce, introduced Mayor Spencer Robinson as toastmaster, who handled the program in an admirable style.

Need Co-operation

When the large banquet room at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse had been filled and all places at the long tables occupied, Mayor Robinson sang the invocation. Preceding the main program the members of the drum and bugle corps of Glendale Post No. 127, American Legion, marched through the banquet hall.

"Constructive co-operation is needed to build any city," Mayor Robinson said in opening the program. "The Chamber of Commerce has been of great assistance to the city and to the members of the City Council. The council and the Chamber of Commerce try to work in harmony, and now that one of the councilmen is a member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, closer co-operation will result."

Assist Burbank

"The citizens of Burbank appreciate the spirit Glendale has shown in backing Burbank in its fight for the University of California, southern branch," said Mayor J. C. Crawford, of Burbank, after Mayor Robinson had introduced Mayor Crawford and his wife. "Even if we do not get the college, we will always know that Glendale worked with us and not against us, showing a spirit of the greatest co-operation.

"The three greatest needs and three problems that should be tackled by the people of Glendale during 1925 are more and better bridges, decent public buildings, and enlarged reservoirs with crosstown mains connecting them," declared City Manager V. B. Stone in an address. "I see another 50,000 population coming in the next ten years, and we must start to prepare for that larger city.

Biggest Problem

"Glendale needs three 50,000,000 gallon reservoirs. This is the biggest problem of the year, and if a start is made on it, one of the greatest accomplishments of the times will be recorded. There is a narrow margin between the reserve supply and the daily average consumption of water, and a terrific fire here would mean the same to Glendale as did the recent conflagration to Berkeley.

"In many places citizens erect monuments to councilmen. Bronze tablets are put up, calling attention to their valorous deeds. The members of the present City Council will have no bronze tablets to live after them, but the sewer system now being installed is a monument to the council, and speaks for the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce and Realty board with the City Council.

Big Development

"Co-operation is needed, we must have it. Lack of co-operation is often misunderstanding, and misunderstanding is caused by people who do not see the city that is to be. Glendale has developed more in the past eighteen years, which is the time it has been incorporated, than Los Angeles did in eighty years."

Howard I. Wood, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, responded to the greetings extended by City Manager Stone. Mr. Wood outlined the purpose and aims of the forum dinners and recounted the activities of previous meetings. He declared he had found Glendale people will always respond and work for civic betterment and touched on the spirit of co-operation shown throughout the city.

Gets $500 in Gold

L. W. Chobe, designer of the numerous prize-winning floats Glendale has entered in the Tournament of Roses, was presented with $500 in gold by Dr. T. C. Young, chairman of the float finance committee of the Chamber of Commerce. The presentation was on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council, Dr. Young said in his address. Dr. Young outlined the work of raising funds for the float.

"I want to thank the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, and the members of the City Council," Mr. Chobe said, in accepting the gift. "I can only add that I am ready to help at any time and work for the city of Glendale. Call on me when you need me."

Mayor Robinson called upon President Smith to introduce the officers and directors of the Chamber of Commerce. Those who responded were: George Karr, first vice-president; Frank Fox, second vice-president; Wil-

Daily Greeting to News Readers

IS THERE ANY GREATER—

Joy than seeing your hands create something useful?
Thrill than hearing words of appreciation from a grateful child?
Sorrow than to find a friend, once trusted, proving untrue?
Regret than to know that a friend's faith in you has been shaken?
Consolation than the memory of having done one's best?

THRIFT WEEK

Thrift Week, which we are now observing, or should be observing, is a "week" that all may celebrate with good results. Thrift embraces industry and frugality and in this age of extravagance it is good to practice these virtues for a week at least, since a taste of the benefits of thrift may lead to the formation of a habit. Thrift has nothing to do with stinginess or parsimoniousness. It means spending a little less than we earn and investing the difference wisely.

Benjamin Franklin, whose birthday we are celebrating, said, "There are two ways of being happy: we may either diminish our wants or augment our means—either will do—the result is the same; and it remains for each man to decide for himself and do that which happens to be the easiest. . . . But if you are wise, you will do both at the same time, young or old, rich or poor, sick or well; and if you are very wise you will do both in such a way as to augment the general happiness of society."

Thrift, unless we are well versed in it, requires the exercise of will power, and this is, in itself, good discipline. Samuel Smiles said that economizing for the purpose of being independent is one of the soundest indications of manly character.

Thrift, as has been said, includes industry, and the industrious people are not the ones who commit the crimes that decorate the first page of the newspaper. These crimes are committed by those whose extravagant expenditures outrun their earnings and who are addicted to idleness. One writer points out a coincidence that the crime figures in this country began to swell to alarming proportions with the beginning of the spending orgy that marked the close of the world war. So there would seem to be a relation between lack of thrift and crime.

And when practicing thrift it is well to remember that time is money and that a wasted hour can never be recalled. "If time be of all things most precious, wasting time must be the greatest prodigality, since lost time is never found again; and what we call time enough always proves little enough," says Franklin, and Gladstone expressed the same idea when he said, "Believe me when I tell you that thrift of time will repay you in after life, with a usury of profit beyond your most sanguine dreams; and that waste of it will make you dwindle alike in intellectual and moral stature, beyond your darkest reckoning."

The universal practice of thrift would be a splendid thing for us as a nation. It is to be hoped that Thrift Week will be generally observed and will be marked by the opening of many new bank accounts.

SPEED COMPETITION

A transcontinental traveler calls attention to the fact that California organizations formed to stimulate travel in this direction might profitably devote some effort to encouraging competition in speed among transcontinental railways. This matter is particularly important just now, when Florida, which already has the advantage of proximity to eastern population centers, is making such a well organized effort to turn the tide of westward travel in the direction of that state.

It is claimed that, while there is a vast difference in the length of the lines running between Los Angeles and Chicago, the running time of the trains is practically the same. If you are going to Chicago or returning from there, do not think you can save time by taking the shortest route. The longest line sets the pace and the shorter ones slow up their time to conform to it.

If the traveler happens to have made part of his journey on one of the limited trains of the New York Central or the Pennsylvania line he is considerably irked by the loafing of the transcontniental train through the open country of the middle west, where the roadbed is magnificent and there is no excuse for the delay, for the trip is a long and tiresome one at best, in spite of the diversions offered by the scenery and the comforts afforded by the trains.

If there is truth in this charge, there should be no delay in taking this matter up with the railroads. The public has benefited by the policy of co-operation adopted by the railroads, but this would seem to be carrying the matter a little too far.

SLANDERING CALIFORNIA

Eastern states are determined that the migration to California shall stop and seem willing to stoop to any measures to prevent their own depopulation by those who would like to live in a less rigorous climate. The latest libel is contained in a widely published statement in the east that California will tax tourists and visitors. No doubt this report is the outgrowth of the discussion of Florida's having abolished state income and inheritance taxes, and a comparison of the attractions of the two states.

The real truth is that the voters of California at the last election authorized legislation that will reduce the tax on eastern securities owned by residents of California. Of course, tourists and visitors are not residents and are not taxed at all.

Wherever the report originated, it is libelous and steps are being taken to correct it. But it is hard to see how slander of this kind can do California serious damage, since the population of this part of the state is made up largely of people from other states who still have friends and relatives there with whom they are in communication, so that a large per cent of the population of eastern states is in direct touch with California, knows all about conditions here and is able to estimate these false reports at their true worth.

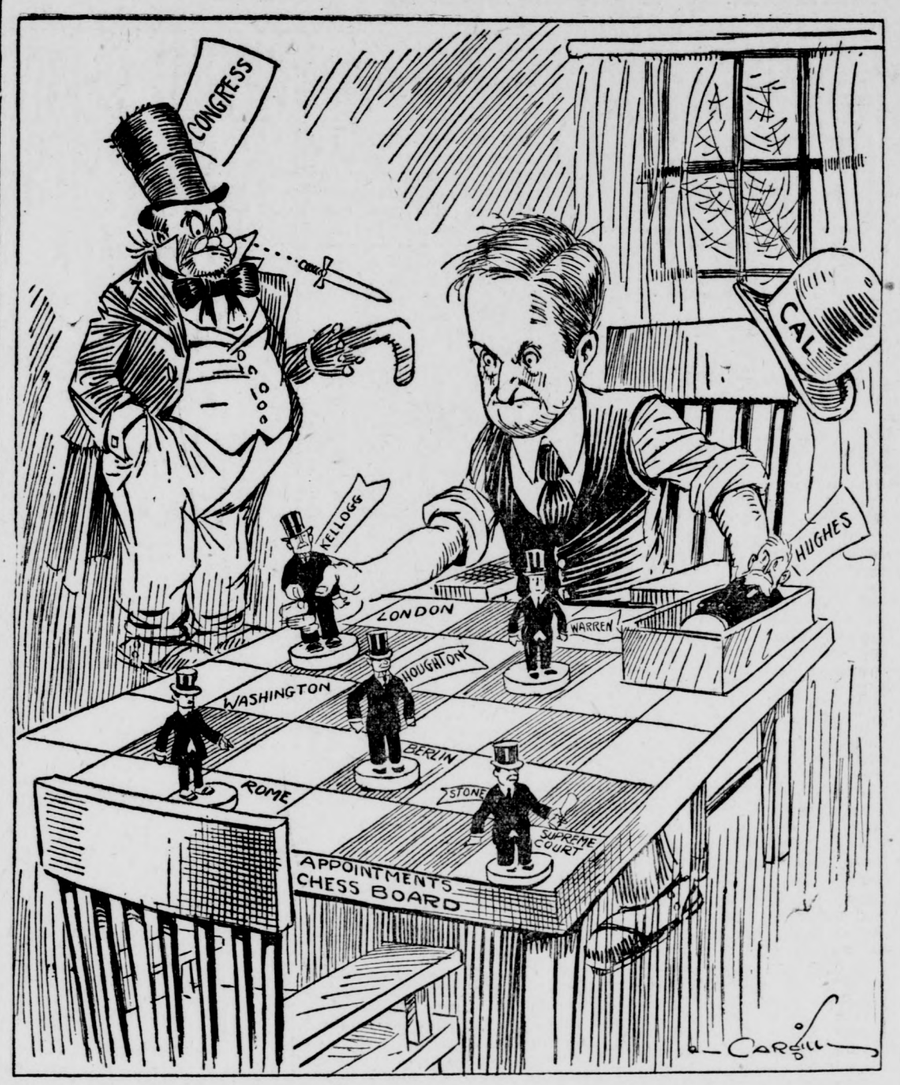
But, of course, there are those to be reckoned with who wish to believe, and always will believe, the worst about anything and everything.

TO DISCOURAGE UNWISE INVESTMENTS

The Chamber of Commerce of Santa Barbara has incorporated in its program for the coming year the resolution that it will "discourage the local sale of wildcat speculative industrial securities." According to this organization the foot and mouth disease, the brush fires and the drought combined have not affected the prosperity of Southern California as seriously as has the widespread sale of worthless securities.

This would seem to be an admirable undertaking and one fraught with great possibilities for promoting prosperity in the community, although it will entail considerable investigation and, in some instances, will require quite a little courage in making reports.

NOT IN ON THE GAME



Training the Subconsciousness

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The existence of the subconsciousness is pretty well established.

Most of us, however, regard it as something over which we have no control. We look upon it as deafness or a cork leg or any other inevitable part of our environment.

The subconscious, however, can be trained, although it must be done indirectly. The first method of training is suggestion. This consists in repeating an idea until it sinks deep in the mind and controls the mind unconsciously. For instance, if we are in the habit of waking at eight o'clock in the morning and wish to arise at six, if we repeat to ourselves over and over, before falling asleep, "I shall wake at six o'clock," we shall probably do so. The unconscious mind goes ahead of the idea and acts upon it.

Another method of training the unconscious mind is psycho-analysis. This consists in gradually laying bare the unconscious mind, transferring it to the conscious, and thus bringing the conflicts between the two under conscious and sure control.

This is rather a long and wearisome business and cannot be of general application.

It involves a patient and exact knowledge of one's character and a considerable control over one's thoughts.

Dr. Paul Baulsfield, of England, relates the case of a man of exceedingly irritable and impatient temper who improved himself very much by following this method.

For twenty minutes every day he thought about all the times he had been irritable, right away back to his earliest childhood and traced the growth of this irritability and the occasions on which it took place.

Then he gave himself suggestions to the intent that under similar circumstances he would not give way to bad temper. He improved so much in six months that if he went into a restaurant where he was kept waiting for twenty minutes, although he still had a tendency to react with a violent temper at first, he calmly thought out the situation for a few minutes and remained perfectly calm and patient.

In a similar manner we can deal with other diseases of the mind, such as alcoholism, drug taking, unreasonable fears and so on.

Horoscope

Astrologers read this as rather a threatening day, for, although Neptune is in benefic aspect early, Jupiter and Uranus are adverse later.

Again it is wise to stick to the beaten paths, making certain to use all one's best powers in the chosen vocation.

There may be clear vision and high ambition stirred by today's aspects, but it will be well to defer carrying out any decisive action.

Under this sway men who have reached eminence may be depressed and weary, for they will see clearly the human leve which is likely to discourage all but the most enthusiastic and far-visioned.

The seers declare that the year is to bring great achievements to residents of this country. Scientific men are to be very successful.

Much deception and false representation may be prevalent at this time, when intrigue is likely to be successful.

There is a sign rather sinister for foreign relations, and mistakes in diplomacy appear to be imminent.

Danger of accident to aviators is supposed to be increased while this configuration prevails.

Women in their thirty-first year may expect something of importance to happen before the next birthday. Usually an event that changes the life for good or evil comes in this important period of life experience.

Warning is given that the temptation to indulge in love-making will be strong for men and women of all ages.

This should be a fairly lucky day for women who devote themselves to practical affairs. Domestic conditions should be favorable.

Changes in manner of living and in American customs will continue to be prevalent, tending more and more toward the two extremes of gregariousness and solitude.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a happy home life in the coming year. They should be cautious in handling money.

Children born on this day may have eventful careers. Many of these subjects of Aquarius choose the artistic professions, for which they should be well fitted.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNARD

"We do not content ourselves with the life we have in ourselves and in our own being, we desire to live an imaginary life in the mind of others, and for this purpose we endeavor to shine. We labor unceasingly to adorn and preserve this imaginary existence, and neglect the real. And if we possess calmness, or generosity, or truthfulness, we are eager to make it known, so as to attach these virtues to that imaginary existence. We would rather separate them from ourselves to join them to it; and we would willingly be cowards in order to acquire the reputation of being brave."

Man has not changed materially in the three centuries since Blaise Pascal wrote the above, and it is as true today as in 1625.

* * *

It seemed to Huxley that there is no alleviation for the sufferings of mankind except veracity of thought and of action, and the resolute facing of the world as it is when the garment of make-believe by which pious hands have hidden its uglier features is stripped off.

Thought constitutes the greatness of man. He is obviously made to think. It is his whole dignity and his whole merit; and his whole duty is to think as he ought. The order of thought, as given by the philosophers, is to begin with self, and with its Author and its end. But of what does the world think? Never of this, but of Coue, cross-word puzzles, jazz, radio programs, baseball schedules, doings in Hollywood; of making oneself king, without thinking what it is to be a king and what to be a man.

"I almost believe we are all of us ghosts!" Ibsen once exclaimed. "It is not only what we have inherited from our father and mother that haunts us, It is all sorts of old dead beliefs, and so forth. They have no life, yet they cleave to us, and we cannot shake ourselves free of them—and then we are all so pitifully afraid in the dark."

The mind attaches itself from indolence and from constancy to whatever is easy and agreeable to it. This habit always sets limits to our knowledge.

With the growth of knowledge our ideas must from time to time be organized afresh.

Who's Who

The thirty-ninth year of Alfonso's reign as king of Spain bids fair to be a hectic one, what with the reverses Spanish leaders have suffered in their campaign against the Moors and internal strife in the home government.

Born May 17, 1886, a posthumous child, his father, King Alfonso XII having died in November, 1885, Alfonso XIII has been Spain's nominal king since the moment of his birth, a position unique in history.

Due to the seclusion and the false instruction to which he was subjected in childhood he came to appear to the Spanish masses to be the paragon of haughty despotism, a king caring only for the external magnificence of his court.

Moreover, sports were little understood in Spain, especially at this period of her history; and the fact that her monarch was devoted to polo, fond of riding, shooting and motoring aroused suspicion and distrust among the Spanish subjects.

At the age of 20 after an extensive tour of the European courts in search of a bride, the young King was married at Madrid to Queen Victoria's granddaughter, Princess Ena of Battenburg.

About this time it was noticed the King developed an unusual thirst for knowledge of things political and in the opinion of certain politicians matters went from bad to worse.

He actually insisted on visiting the remotest parts of his kingdom in order to understand specific problems at first hand. He let it be known that he had the people's interests at heart and with great courage he carried out his policy.

From the first day of the World war, King Alfonso showed he was wholeheartedly on the side of the Allies.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Reactionary conditions prevailed in the stock market today. The session was one of the most inactive in the last two months, due in some measure to the fact that many large commission houses were out of touch with western points because of wire trouble. This gave the bears the opportunity to ferret out weak spots in the speculative list and to concentrate selling where stocks appeared to be dislodged. Some of the prominent economic agencies also have been issuing bearish statements for the short range, though bullish for the "long pull."

Announcement of additional price advances in gasoline and rumors of forthcoming advances to include oil prices were without apparent effect on the oil stocks, except to save them from depression in the heavy selling movement which took place immediately after the opening of the market. The halting of the forward movement in the low priced stocks was due in large measure to the temporary withdrawal of western buying orders.

New forward movements were started in the fourth hour in a few of the specialties and industrials. Commercial solvents A. and B. stocks were up about six points on a fairly heavy turnover. The sugar stocks, under the leadership of American sugar refining, made a good recovery. American Sugar sold up to 56, a new high for the movement and eight points above the low of last week. Belief that the stocks will be placed on a dividend basis has increased speculative interest in it.

U. S. Steel registered the efforts of the bears to dislodge the stock from the high price levels recently attained. Its firmness was a tower of strength to the whole market and offerings of stock practically disappeared when bid prices declined a point or more from the level of the previous close. To the large array of bullish developments in the railroad, oil, steel and other industries was added that of an easier money market. After ruling at 3 per cent, call money declined to 2½ per cent. with offerings in the outside market reported at 2 per cent. Grain markets were steady and cotton slightly irregular.

CHICAGO WHEAT

By International News Service

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Grains were weaker at the close today, after a spotty session in which wheat futures touched new highs, only to ease off sharply, dragging other grains with them.

Wheat finished 3-4 off to 3-8 up. Corn closed 1-4 to 3-4 off.

Oats finished 1-8 to 3-8 off.

Provisions eased off with grains and closed lower.

Realty Board to Hold Meeting at Glen Inn

The meeting of the Glendale Realty board tomorrow at noon will take place at the Glen Inn, 152 South Brand boulevard, instead of at the Egyptian Village cafe, Secretary John Klise announced today. The change in meeting place has been occasioned by the closing of the Egyptian Village which ceased to operate yesterday after the first announcement of the Realty board luncheon had been made.

Dean Thomas C. Burt of Occidental college will be the main speaker on the program tomorrow. He will talk on "Education As Applied to Real Estate."

Radio Fans Report on Hearing City Program

Over half a hundred replies to the Glendale Chamber of Commerce invitation to radio fans to write in that they heard the Glendale program given Saturday night, have been received since yesterday at Chamber of Commerce headquarters. Secretary Howard I. Wood of the chamber today urged that everyone in Glendale invite eastern friends and relatives to tune in on the next concert which will be March 7 between 9 and 10 o'clock. Letters should be written early so that they reach their destination in time, Secretary Wood said.

NEW FUNERAL HOME OPENS TOMORROW

Jewel City Undertaking Co. Invites Residents to Visit Establishment

Crowning over thirteen years of thoughtful service and business success in Glendale, the artistic and splendidly-equipped funeral home of the Jewel City Undertaking Co., at 137 North Orange street, will be formally opened from 4 to 10 o'clock Wednesday, January 21, by Mr. and Mrs. J. Ed Phillips. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips have made hosts of friends in Glendale and vicinity in administering the duties of their profession, and they have invited these friends and other residents of Glendale and nearby cities to visit their funeral home tomorrow.

For many years Mr. and Mrs. Phillips were located at North Brand boulevard and Wilson avenue, in the building prominent in Glendale history as the Glendale Country club. During the past year plans were made for moving the building to the North Orange street site, where it has been thoroughly remodeled, artistically refinished without and within and equipped with every convenience found in modern mortuaries. The building now faces on Orange street, placed on a large lot, just in front of the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Phillips. A cement driveway provides easy access around or to either side of the building.

Stucco Construction

Of the California-Mission type, the funeral home presents a most attractive appearance. It is of stucco construction, with soft-colored awnings, iron gratings, and a porch leading to the entrance into the reception room. To the north of the porch is the door to the business office. General business is transacted in this office room.

Another door leads to the private office, and from this room one goes into the beautifully arranged reception room, which also has a main entrance from the porch and another large door into the chapel. The chapel is on the south side of the building. Just back of the chapel is the music room and nearby the family room. Work is now under way on the completion of a six-room vault, where bodies may be kept temporarily.

A hallway leading directly the length of the building from the reception room leads to two slumber and work rooms for women, and an embalming room for men. On the north side of the building is a smaller stock room, and then a larger display room.

Throughout the building one notes a restful atmosphere, created by the soft colors used in finishing and furnishing. On the floors rugs in soft grays have been used, and harmonizing with them are the rose shades seen in hangings, floor lamps and overstuffed furniture. Jacob Fink, interior decorator, has done some wonderful work in stippling and redoing the woodwork to harmonize with the general decoration. In the reception hall one sees a beautiful reproduction of the well-known painting, "The Lost Sheep."

Grass furniture is most effective in the chapel, family room and other places in the building. In the slumber rooms is found some fine mural painting done by Mr. Fink. The gold stippling has been used throughout the big display room, where one sees a stock running into many thousands of dollars. In several of the rooms the ivory enamel has been used effectively.

From Michigan

The entire plant provides Mr. and Mrs. Phillips with equipment and atmosphere with which to continue the service that has won for them lasting friendships.

Patrons of the Jewel City Undertaking Co. also have a most complete motor service offered them. Mr. Phillips now owns a motor hearse, an invalid coach, a first-call automobile, a seven-passenger sedan and a five-passenger sedan of the latest models.

The formal opening of the funeral home tomorrow will be of wide interest, for Mr. Phillips was for many years engaged in his profession in Michigan. His thirty-one years' professional success has given him prominence as a member of the California Funeral Directors' association and the Southern California Funeral Directors' association.

WOMAN FIGHTS FIRE AT RISK OF LIFE

Mrs. E. D. Reynolds Aids In Saving Home; Men Battle Auto Shop Flames

Heroic action on the part of Mrs. E. D. Reynolds yesterday afternoon, coupled with prompt response by the Glendale fire department and expert assistance from the Southern California Gas Co., saved her home at 343 West Ivy street from being swept by flames, following the explosion of a laundry mangle on the rear porch, shortly before 3 o'clock.

When apparatus from station 1 answered the alarm, in charge of Captain J. Meyer, Mrs. Reynolds was found amid swirling tongues of fire, calmly holding a rag to the broken end of the gas pipe. While the firemen played chemicals on the blaze, a gas company crew arrived and turned off the flow.

In a matter of minutes, the fire was pronounced out. The damage was placed by Captain Meyer at not over $10. Mrs. Reynolds was slightly burned about the hands.

Risk Their Lives

Another spectacular blaze brought out apparatus from station No. 1 at 4:50 o'clock, this time to the body and fender shop of Carl & Henry, at 122 West Colorado boulevard, in the one-story brick building owned by Councilman S. A. Davis. Here Chief A. H. Lankford of the Glendale fire department, who was in charge, found a gasoline blaze raging.

Alfred Wolf and L. B. Dutro of the Glendale Motor Car Co., next door, were working desperately with fire extinguishers to quell the menacing flames, risking their lives in the effort. Men from the Jesse E. Smith Co., and R. E. Corrigan, automobile dealers located nearby, were also spraying the blaze with fire extinguishers.

Cause of Fire

Chief Lankford ordered chemicals applied and the flames were quickly subdued. When the fire was out, investigation revealed that a short circuit from a car being repaired had ignited the gasoline tank.

This car, the property of Charles Lang, figured in another fire on January 16, in the garage of H. Ferguson at the rear of 220 South Brand boulevard, fire department records show.

The damage then was placed at $200. Chief Lankford estimates the damage in the present case at $30.

Heart and Home — Health and Happiness

Diet And Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

FREAK REDUCING DIETS (Part 1)

Have you heard about the Mayo reducing diet which consists of a cup of clear coffee for breakfast, two raw tomatoes, two hard boiled eggs and two glasses of skim milk for lunch and the same for dinner? I don't know where it originated but it was NOT at the famous Mayo Clinic. I'll tell you that right away.

I heard about this diet last summer when I was in California. I doubted very much that any freak diet would be used and advocated by scientific physicians, and I decided to write the Mayo Clinic but I did something better.

Naturally I have to keep very much up on all methods of reducing so I decided that on my way back to New York I would visit the Mayo Clinic. I found just as I had suspected, that the system of reducing used there is the same little "ole" system that we are talking about all the time in the column—a varied diet consisting of all the elements needed by the system, except for part of its energy needs, and a careful counting of calories.

When I told the doctors what had brought me there they laughed and said that recently they had had many inquiries through the mails about this diet. They did not know where it originated either, but it certainly didn't originate there. They have a diet kitchen for the patients who are able to be up and around who come there for various disorders, and for whom a careful regulation of diet is necessary. Those who are overweight are put on a reduction diet but they make no specialty of reducing.

If you want to go on this so-called Mayo diet you have my blessing. It averages but 700 to 800 calories so it is too low in calories to furnish sufficient of the needed elements for any length of time. It is fairly high in mineral elements, vitamins and protein but it is too low in carbohydrates (starches and sugars) and contrary to popular opinions, it is absolutely necessary to have some carbohydrates in the reducing diet. Otherwise a state of acidosis which is worse than the original condition may be brought on. You notice in the diets I advise that I allow you two slices of bread or two ordinary sized potatoes or some similar food daily.

There are other freak diets that you hear of that are supposed to give wonderful reducing results—the lamb chop and pineapple, and the skim milk and baked potato are the best known of them.

Now these freak diets will reduce and they will reduce rapidly, for one reason only—they furnish an insufficient number of calories for the needs. Count the calories in them, and you will see. A glass of skim milk is 80 calories and the average sized potato is 100 calories. One hundred and eighty calories three times a day is but 540 calories. A slice of pineapple is about 50 calories and an ordinary sized lamb chop without any of the fat would be from 100 to 150 calories so this diet would average from 600 to 700 calories.

The average adult needs from 1800 to 2500 calories per day depending upon the frame and activities. You can see from this that on these diets from 1200 to 1800 calories per day are going to be supplied by the stored fat. As one-quarter of a pound of fat, human or otherwise, is approximately 1000 calories over a quarter of a pound a day will be lost.

But, let me repeat, 600 to 700 calories of food will not contain sufficient of the elements to maintain health. So low an intake as that would be all right for a week or so only.

But why go on a freak diet? Aside from the monotony, they make you conspicuous if you dine out and you put your hostess to inconvenience if you dine with friends.

Tomorrow—Freak Reducing Diets (Part 2)

Mrs. W.: "Some time ago you published a recipe for Wholewheat Bread which was fine. I used it but then lost it. Will you kindly reprint it?"

Answer: Wholewheat Bread.: Scald one cup of sweet milk and let cool slightly, then turn it into a mixing bowl with one teaspoon of butter, one-half teaspoon of salt and one-half teaspoon of sugar; when luke-warm add one-half cake of compressed yeast which has been dissolved in one-third cup of tepid water. Then stir in three cups of the wholewheat flour, mixing well but not kneading. Cover the bowl and let rise till double in bulk. Now turn it out onto a floured board and knead only enough to form it into two loaves. Place these in two small greased bread pans and when allowed to rise till again double in bulk, bake in a hot oven for 30 minutes. This bread requires between four and five hours to make. Many housekeepers prefer to make it in the daytime, having it ready for night dinner.

Miss T.: "How can I clean a dark charmeuse dress"

Answer: With gasoline, but not near heat or flame. If the dress is not very badly soiled, merely apply a little gasoline to the spots by means of a dampened cloth. Otherwise give it a gasoline bath in a basin which contains at least a gallon of the gasoline. Have another basin of the fluid at hand to rinse the dress in. Hang the garment out-of-doors till the odor has evaporated, then press. I generally advise my readers, however, to let a professional cleansing establishment do work of this sort for I have found from personal experience that the garment is like new when professionally cleaned. (Note: To wash the dress in the gasoline, merely souse it up and down to loosen the dirt. Use no soap.)

Constant Reader: "Don't you think it would be interesting if some of our Housekeeper Readers told us their ways of making apple pies? But I hope they'll give the time of baking and how hot an oven should be, and all those little details which experienced cooks often omit!"

Answer: I think it would be extremely interesting. Apple pie seems to be the favorite variety in most households. If our readers will respond we should have some flaky piecrust recipes.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

ANSWERED LETTERS

A Reader: The services of a chiropodist amount to so little that it always pays to have a corn removed for you. In between visits to the chiropodist you can prevent reappearance of the corn about once a week by rubbing oil into it. Whenever you find it getting hard, use a sanitary file over the growth, just enough to take off the top part of the corn, but never enough to cause any sensitiveness.

M. M. L.: When hair is inclined to be dry and brittle it is best not to use artificial heat for drying. The pilocarpine tonic, frequently mentioned in the "Chats," would be what you need in building up a healthy action of your scalp. I will be glad to mail it to you upon request ans receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sissie: If you are overweight a general reduction will make your legs slimmer; if not, the dancing you long for will furnish the exercise that will help to reduce your legs.

John R. F.: Scrub feet every night with a soap that has salicylic acid in it and change the stockings daily. Dust feet with a bath power in which there is some salicylic acid or other antiseptic. After a few weeks of this care you will likely overome the unpleasant odor.

A Reader: Agar-agar is usually taken by sprinkling it over a breakfast cereal or any other similar food. As it is tasteless and gelatinous you can even include it in soup without noticing its presence. It passes through the digestive tract acting as a cleanser without being a purgative.

Lilly: Mineral oil does not fatten when taken inwardly or when used on the skin.

Bee: I am sorry but I cannot give you the address of the company.

E. P.: If you add lemon juice and bicarbonate of soda to the last shampoo rinse it will help to keep your blonde hair from turning dark. The proportions are juice of half a medium size lemon and half a teaspoonful of soda to a large basinful of water.

Helen: Buttermilk is a mild skin bleach and less irritating than lemon juice. Rub it into pores and give it about a half hour before bathing the face. If the skin feels drawn or very dry, massage with a little cold cream after using any bleach.

DR. OTEY SAYS:

Osteopathy's basic principle, the one thing that in 1892, when it was publicly given to the world in the organization of the American School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., distinguished it from all other schools, methods, systems, pathies and therapies, cults, isms, practices, etc., was adjustment. For years the osteopaths were known as BONE SETTERS. The Founder of Osteopathy said Osteopathy consisted of "finding it and fixing it." Osteopathy is the original and only complete system of adjustment. Osteopathy is correction of structure. That correction may consist of muscular relaxation, plus manipulations to make the ligaments pliable, the joints freely movable and to get every bone, spinal and otherwise in its proper position so that there may be no pressure on blood vessels or nerves to or from any part and thereby allow free flow of the vital fluids and forces of the body. The result is health, provided there has not been destruction of tissue, add to this those therapeutic agents that are the common property of all schools of healing, diet, hygiene sanitation, antisepsis, etc., etc. In short, all those corrections of one's habits of life, mechanical, chemical and mental and you have Osteopathy in its entirety, but the one big thing is adjustment, not the biff, bang kind, but skilled adjustment by the use of a thorough knowledge of the body in health and disease, taking into account the strength of materials, the leverages offered by the long bones, the necessity for protection of the softer structure of the body while getting sufficient stress for adjustment, the preliminary relaxing and softening of tissues to allow of adjustment and re-establishing normal motion. To have health you must have CONDITION as well as POSITION.

The Wrath To Come

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM, Copyright 1924

CHAPTER XXV

They jumped into a taxi and Hodson gave the man an address on the other side of the Park. In about twenty minutes they pulled up outside what was evidently a second-class lodging house. On the steps a young man was waiting.

"Colonel Hodson?" he asked.

"Right," Hodson answered. "Are you from Poynter's?"

"Yes, sir. Mr. Poynter's upstairs himself. He left me here to wait for you. Will you go up to the top floor?"

They climbed six flights of stairs—narrow stairs, and dark—passing through mixed atmospheres of cooking, stale tobacco, of beer and patchouli. There were theatrical cards stuck on some of the panels; now and then a door was stealthily opened and the intruders scrutinized. On the sixth floor Mr. Poynter, the famous detective, who had once been in the Government service, stood waiting. He shook hands with Hodson and nodded to Grant.

"We're up against a nasty piece of business, Colonel," he announced. "I wanted you to see exactly how things stood for yourself before the police got hold of it."

"Get on with the story, Poynter," Hodson invited.

"In the first place," the detective pointed out, "the girl's bell is cut. You see the wire there. It's a clean cut, been done with a pair of nippers, within the last hour or two. Now come inside, sir. But," he added, his hand upon the handle of the door, "you must be prepared for something unpleasant."

"The young lady?" Grant exclaimed.

"She is dead," Poynter answered gravely. "The scene is set for suicide. Personally I think she was murdered. The door of her room was locked and the key is nowhere in her room. I picked the lock after I had tracked her down. This way, sir. The smell is still bad, but I have had the window open an hour."

They entered what was little more than a garret bedroom. On the bed lay the body of Mademoiselle Cleo. Mr. Poynter raised the sheet which he had drawn over her face and let it drop almost immediately. Above the girl's head was the gas jet and from it a small piece of tube hung downwards. The remains of the imprisoned gas were still escaping by the open window.

"She was quite dead when I picked the lock," Poynter told them, "and for the moment I thought that the gas would get me. I managed to make a rush for it to the window, though."

"But surely all this points to her having committed suicide?" Grant queried.

"I am perfectly certain all the same that she did not," the detective replied. "Not only has her bell been cut but the telephone is cut too. She was lying half across the floor, trying to reach it or the window when I found her, and the window was fastened down with a nail which had only recently been driven in. There is not the least doubt but that some powerful person entered her room, held her down until the last moment, then rushed out, locking the door behind him. There are marks upon the girl's throat which could not possibly have been self-inflicted."

Grant searched the room for a note or letter, but in vain.

"What she knew," Hodson decided at last, "she has taken with her. You had better notify the police, Poynter, and stand by while they take note of the things you have pointed out to me. You can say that we two have seen them."

"And don't let them take her away," Grant insisted. "I will be responsible for the funeral arrangements."

"There's just one thing," Mr. Poynter said, casting his professional eye once more around the room. "I have a perfectly definite idea of my own as to the type of person who was following this poor girl. Am I to go on?"

"Absolutely," Hodson replied. "You can treat it as a Government affair, Poynter, and take your orders from me. The young lady was suspected of having political secrets in her possession."

"You'll be back for it," the other assured him. "I want you to catch the Katalonia tomorrow morning. She sails at eight o'clock. Let me see, tomorrow's Saturday. You'll be in Plymouth Wednesday, and in London Wednesday night. Lord Yeovil will be expecting you. You can sail back on Saturday in the Sefalonia. You'll probably return with Yeovil and his staff."

"What am I to do in England?" Grant asked, trying to keep back an alien and most disturbing thought.

"Deliver dispatches from Washington," was the prompt reply. "I have them in my pocket. I came through from Washington today. Great Britain polices the eastern waters for the Limitation of Armaments Conference, and we want a seaplane patrol over certain specified districts. There are a few other little matters to be enquired into, too."

"Look here," Grant expostulated. "You're not sending me over to play messenger boy, are you?"

"Not likely!"

"What's the game then? Do you want to get me out of the way?"

"Not precisely that. Where are you dining?"

"With you, anywhere. I was going up to the Lotos Club. Stoneham generally drops in there."

"I'm tired," Hodson confessed. "I'd like to hear some music and look at some pretty women. I'll go round and have a bath and change and call for you in half an hour. We'll get a corner table at Sherry's. I think, as we're saving empires, we can afford some terrapin and a bottle of champagne."

"You're serious about that trip to England—because I must have my fellow pack?"

"Serious! My God, I am!" was the emphatic answer. "You'll be the chief spoke in the wheel for the next ten days. You won't miss anything here, either. I'm gathering up some wonderful threads but I'm doing it silently. I'll come round in half an hour. I'm on your floor."

GATEWAY THEATRE

Comparable only, it is said, to the famous journey of the pioneers in James Cruze's "The Covered Wagon," is the huge drive of four thousand cattle in "North of 36," which Irvin Willat produced for Paramount.

In the story, which was written by Emerson Hough, who also wrote "The Covered Wagon," a herd of four thousand long-horn cattle start from the Del Sol ranch in southeastern Texas and, with the north star as their only guide, set out for the railroad at Abilene, Kansas.

Two tremendous stampedes, a river fording scene, an attack by the Indians and a night attack by a band of carpet-baggers mark a few of the many thrilling incidents which take place during the journey.

Featured in the cast of "North of 36," showing the last times today at Gateway Theatre, are Jack Holt, Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson and Noah Beery.

THE GLENDALE

Al Christie's "Reckless Romance" concludes today at the Glendale Theatre. Wednesday and Thursday the picture is Fred Thompson in "Galloping Gallagher."

DOBINSON PLAYERS

"Love Laughs," a three-act comedy by George D. Parker, opening Wednesday at the Tuesday Afternoon club theatre, features Mary Worth in the most delightful role this charming little actress has yet had with the Dobinson Players.

The story revolves about a nerve specialist who is besought by a love-struck bachelor, who asks to be made sick so that he can be nursed by his inamorata, Propinquity, says the bachelor, will bring about the desired engagement. The doctor finally responds to the request, and the ten days' illness is on. Propinquity does its work, but it is the doctor's ward, however, to whom the bachelor becomes affianced while the physician, himself, wins the heart of the nurse.

An excellent supporting cast has been chosen for "Love Laughs," including Mary Isabelle Alpaugh, Joseph McManus, William H. Stephens, Richard Ehlers, Eugenia Florence, Arthur Lovejoy and Harry J. Glazier.

THE T. D. & L.

Dante's "Inferno" concludes today at the T. D. & L. Theatre. Wednesday and Thursday the picture is "Locked Doors," a William De Mille production.

FORESTRY CAMPAIGN

Professor Henry S. Graves, formerly head of the United States forest service and now dean of forestry at Yale, has come forward with the suggestion that the United States spend about $100,000,000 in the next fifteen years to teach forest preservation and provide reforestation aid.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE WOODPECKER

The woodpecker sat in the tall, oak tree, and he was as hungry as hungry could be. He drilled some holes, in his funny way, but not a bug did he find that day.

"And if I don't find some bugs, or worms, pretty soon, with all the holes I'm making in this tree, I'll starve to death!" croaked the woodpecker, banging his sharp beak on a dead branch.

For it is in that way, you know, that the woodpecker bird gets his living. He drills holes in trees, as a carpenter makes holes in a board with a gimlet. And at the bottom of the hole he makes, the woodpecker hopes to find worms and bugs to eat.

"But this is my unlucky day!" croaked the bird, who had a tuft of red feathers on his head.

"Why is it your unlucky day?" asked Uncle Wiggily, who, just then, hopped beneath the tree. And when the Woodpecker told the bunny about making a lot of holes, but finding nothing to eat, Mr. Longears said:

"Wait here a minute and I'll bring you a piece of suet and some bread crumbs!"

Over to his hollow stump bungalow hopped the rabbit, and soon he had given the woodpecker plenty to eat. And if there is one thing that all birds like more than another in winter, it is suet from a piece of meat. Suet helps to keep the birds warm.

"Oh, I feel ever so much better now, Uncle Wiggily," said the woodpecker, flapping its wings. "Thank you very much. Any time you want a hole drilled in your bungalow let me know."

"I will," promised the rabbit. "But, as this is winter, we don't want any holes in the bungalow to let in the cold wind." So Uncle Wiggily hopped along and the bird cuddled up in a hollow of the tree to go sleep.

Now it happened that the sly Fox had seen the woodpecker making holes in the tree, and the Fox said to himself.

"Tonight I'll catch that bird. I'll take him to Uncle Wiggily's bungalow and make the woodpecker drill a hole in the front door with his beak. Once the hole is drilled, I can reach my paw in, turn the lock, open the door, and then I can enter and nibble the rabbit's ears. That's what I'll do!"

That night the Fox crept to the woodpecker's tree and hauling the bird out of his warm nest the Fox said:

"Come and make a hole in Uncle Wiggily's door for me so I can open it and get in."

"No! I'm not going to do such a thing to my good friend Uncle Wiggily!" croaked the woodpecker.

"Do it or I'll pull out all your tail feathers!" threatened the Fox. So the woodpecker, being afraid of having his tail feathers pulled out, said:

"All right, I suppose I'll have to." So the Fox took the bird to the bungalow and told him to drill a hole in the door. But the woodpecker knew how to play a trick.

"Bang! Bang! Bang!" he tapped his beak on the glass of the door, instead of hitting the soft wood. "Bang! Bangity! Bing."

"Burglars! Thieves! Fire! Police!" cried Nurse Jane in the bungalow, hearing the noise, just as the woodpecker thought she would. "Call the Police Dog, Uncle Wiggily! Some one is trying to get in!"

"Good night!" howled the Fox, when he heard this. "You've spoiled my plans!"

"Just what I wanted to do!" laughed the bird as he flew back to his nest while the Fox ran off in the dark woods and hid. And not until next day did Mr. Longears learn from the woodpecker what had happened.

So if the snowflake doesn't go to sleep under the stove and find itself turned into a puddle of water when it wakes up, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty's box.

Active Glands Gave Napoleon Fighting Force

According to Berman, a noted scientist, who has analyzed the action of the glands, Napoleon, one of the greatest fighters of all history, owed his courage and fighting force to large and extremely active adrenal glands.

Not only have the glands an important influence on the mind and character of the individual, but they also largely control health, energy and vitality, and it is by maintaining the normal functioning of the glands that we may combat sickness and ill health, according to eminent scientists and physicians of this country and Europe.

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, prepared in tablet form, provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Glnadogen, for men and women, is obtainable at Ahlmann Drug Co., Brand at Harvard. Free booklets on request.—Advertisement.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—A double-jointed baseball caravan into California is contemplated by the Chicago Nationals and the Pittsburgh Pirates, who are likely to start on a special train from Chicago, February 26, for their training quarters. This is the first time that a trainload of baseball players has threatened an invasion of the coast in the spring. There have been excursions of major league players to California to play exhibition games in the winter, but never a trainload in the spring to prepare for the major league campaigns in the east in the following summer.

Both teams will go direct to Los Angeles, whence the Cubs will cross to Catalina island, while the Pirates will go north to Paso Robles. It is possible that the caravan will pick up the St. Louis Nationals at Kansas City and leave them at Barstow, whence they would go north to their training camp at Stockton.

Should all three clubs cross the Rocky mountains in company, they would constitute the largest army of ball players ever to cross the Great Divide in a single division. Including the players and their companions, baseball writers and such fans as may go along, it would take ten or twelve Pullmans to haul them.

On the return trip from the west, the Chicagoans have decided to abandon side games on the way through the mountain regions. They will ride direct to Kansas City for their first stop, and from there will go on to Chicago.

Killefer, the Chicago manager, figures that his team of old-timers will do better with as little show-off stuff as possible, and he is anxious to have his players in the best possible condition when he starts the season, because the Cubs are to be sent out to try to capture some of the Giants' early-lead stuff.

The Columbus team of the American association has taken advantage of the desertion of Winter Haven, Fla., by the Chicago Sox to lease the ball grounds there for their training purposes. Columbus will be close to Toledo at Deland, Milwaukee at Sanford and Indianapolis at Plant City. Minneapolis probably will go to San Antonio, now that the Bostons are to train at New Orleans, and Kansas City is going to Hanford, Cal. Louisville has settled upon Mobile. It is not certain where the St. Paul champions will train. Maybe in Texas.

All the American association clubs in Florida will play exhibition games, as they did in 1924. Columbus has booked Washington and the Giants, and also expects to play Baltimore, the first International league club to take training quarters in the Florida lake region.

This is the first of a series of articles prepared by Norman E. Brown, celebrated sport authority, and illustrated by John Sords, noted cartoonist dealing with what Brown terms the "Modern Sport Era." These will be informative as well as interesting. Watch for future articles.

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Written for The Evening News.

This year of 1925 marks, in a general way, the fiftieth anniversary of what may well be termed the Modern Sport Era. For this reason, if for no other one, it will be an epochal one, despite the fact that the calendar does not, at this time, indicate any coming events which will make the year as conspicuous as some of the preceding ones.

Basic Foundation

This fifty-year span in sport, which is drawing to a close, is a distinct period in athletic history in the United States. It dates definitely from the time that the major sports, as we now know them, were placed on their present footing, generally speaking.

The basic foundations for baseball, football and tennis as we now recognize the games, were laid just half a century ago.

Prize fighting was emerging from is bare knuckle days to the present order.

The ground work on which golf was raised to a major sport was being laid then.

The sporting world in general had them completely recovered from the inroads of war (the conflict between the north and the south) just as it has today from the upheaval due to the world war.

Associations and styles of play were being formed fifty years ago, which have held through the intervening years.

Diamond Sport

Baseball is indicative of the revolutionary changes in sport which marked the beginning of this modern era. The diamond sport was placed on the firm foundation on which it has rested since in 1876 when the National league was organized. The year previous to that the first recognized no-hit games, the goal of every pitcher's life, were hurled. The game was startled by the introduction, about that time, of the feat of sliding into a base. The name of the man who introduced this so-called daring novelty at the time, is interesting.

The last real change in the playing formation of the baseball team was instituted about that time when one of the game's greatest stars of all time introduced the shortstop.

Mile-Stone in Boxing

And boxing. It was a few months more than fifty years ago that a heavyweight battle was staged which had a direct bearing on the world's championship which later was handed down by the mailed fists of Sullivan, Jeffries, Fitzsimmons, Corbett and others to Jack Dempsey, present title-holder. The names of the men who fought that memorable battle at St. Louis have long since been forgotten.

The game of tennis, introduced in 1874 at Newport, was, in 1875, the fad of the idle rich, scoffed at by those who wanted "red blooded" sport. In their scoffing they were blind to its possibilities.

In football Yale had played something of the kind for some twenty-five years, but it was not until 1873 that Yale, Princeton, Columbia and Rutgers formulated the first code. Two years later—just 60 years ago—this code was altered to make the game a compromise between English and American rugby rules, and Harvard, joining the group, played its first game with Yale.

Few sportsmen and followers of athletics realized in those days that they were laying the groundwork for an age in sport that would carry every branch of athletics to international proportions and develop a host of stars who, by their greatness, would become immortals.

This series of articles, which is now in the writing is to deal with those stars, their part in the development of the branches of sport in this modern age and the high spots in this fifty year span from other angles.

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By JOSEPH L. KELLEY
Of The Evening News Staff.

Hal Roach's signing Jimmie Horne to direct Glenn Tryon, whom we predict is going to be another Harold Lloyd on the comedy screen, if Hal Roach will dig up another "Grandma's Boy" for his star, recalls that Glendale, not Hollywood, was first given the opportunity to become the motion picture producing center of the world. Old-timers around Glendale (and they don't have to be so very old, either) will tell you of the time when the old Kalem company had its producing units here. That was not long after the time when Kalem turned down a starring contract with Charlie Chaplin that would have brought the comedian the munificient sum of $60 per week for his services. Them were the good old days in "fillums."

Joseph L. Kelley

"Mickey" Neilan, now one of the screen's best directors who will handle the megaphone for Mary Pickford's next "child" production, was around that time chauffeur for Kalem's big boss whose name we don't recall just now. Jimmie can tell you.

At that time Tom Moore, Alice Joyce, Ham and Bud and Marin Sais were staring under the Kalem colors. Kalem was one of the leaders in big productions and variety of production. Kalem's New York office was on 23rd street a block down from the famous Flatiron building.

Ye Ed was New York publicity director for Kalem at its New York office, for the few weeks just before the 'blow up' and the virtual passing from motion picture history of Kalem company.

Which brings Ye Ed back to Jimmie Horne's part with Kalem. Jimmie now is a resident of Glendale, we understand. It was here that Jimmie got his start as director of moving pictures.

If Jimmie will turn back the pages of his diary he will find that at the time of which we speak he was directing one Marin Sais in a series of two-reel western dramas.

Miss Sais with Helen Holmes, she of the wild train wrecks and rides, was the provider of thrills on the Kalem program. Texas Guinan, old timers will remember, was doing some western pictures at the same time under other management — Triangle, we believe.

Miss Sais and Miss Guinan were the two leading dare-devil riders among the feminine contingent of Western stars at that time. Jimmie Horne was directing Miss Sais.

There were two outstanding directors of western screen drama at the time—Jimmie Horne and Lynn Reynolds with the old Triangle company. "Two-Gun Bill" Hart was turning 'em out fast at that time. Charlie Ray was just coming into prominence as a star. The old Ince-Triangle scenario staff composed of C. Gardner Sullivan, Roy Sommerville and Frank Woods, among others, was getting in some great work with the Coronas.

Jimmie Horne was part and parcel of this great era in the motion picture industry. Big things were happening. Griffith was strutting about receiving compliments on his 'Birth of a Nation'. The old Triangle company was seeing its last days but didn't know it.

"Mickey" Neilan since has graduated from chauffeur to leading director. Charlie Chaplin's evolution is history—that which took place in Charlie's life since he was refused $60 per by Kalem as a comedian.

How little did Jimmie Horne think Glendale was to boast 55,000 inhabitants and he would be megaphoning comedies on the Hal Roach lot in Culver City, which at that time was a lot of weeds and vacant land.

His gradual shift from wild westerns to comedy was natural if you take into consideration that both depend on "gags" or "stunts" to put them over. A good western thriller and good comedy "gags" are synonymous in more ways than one.

A man who could picture some of the thrillers Jimmie sent Marin Sais through in those old westerners won't have much trouble picturing some "knockout gags" to send Glenn Tryon through today.

Jimmie Horne never was fortunate or unfortunate, depending upon how you look at the manner the passing years have publicized him, in being 24-four-sheeted as the "world's greatest director." But this same Jimmie has had experiences behind the megaphone which few of his fellow directors can boast.

As the prolific press agent would put it, Jimmie Horne has "run the gamut" of emotions "behind the camera". He has seen pretty much all there is to see, and Jimmie is the man to take advantage of the good and forget the bad.

In Jimmie Horne, Hal Roach has a director who literally "knows it all". Jimmie has been "through the mill". He has seen the picture business grow from an infant industry to the fourth largest, and in watching it grow Jimmie hasn't lost a link in the chain that went to make the industry the greatest single medium of entertainment in the world.

The selection of Jimmie Horne proves again the far-sightedness of Hal Roach as a maker of picture entertainment. Hal Roach's turning Jimmie over to direct young Tryon proves Roach's confidence in Tryon—proves that he has come to realize that one of the things Tryon needs to make him another Harold Lloyd is a director with brains and the ability to use them along the right direction.

Now if Hal Roach will fortify Jimmie and his charge, young Tryon, with another "Grandma's Boy" he'll prove beyond a doubt he's the greatest 'picker' of constructive material in the motion picture industy.

SEEK SUCCESSOR TO 'GLOOMY GUS'

Definite Announcement May Be Made at U.S.C. Some Time Next Month

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—Practically every football coach in the country of prominence was being named today as a probable successor to Elmer Henderson, former football mentor of the University of Southern California, following Knute Rockne's decision not to accept the post tendered him.

Nothing new regarding the coaching situation at U. S. C. will be given out by the university athletic officials until after the first of the month, it was learned, but in the meantime football fans are going over the list of the country's leading coaches and hooking their names up with the vacancy in the Trojan camp. Any number of suggestions as to a successor for Henderson have been made and are being considered.

Madigan's Contract Expires April 1

OAKLAND, Jan. 20.—Edward P. Madigan is eligible for bids from outside universities seeking a football coach, it was learned today, when Madigan confirmed the report that his contract with St. Mary's college expires April 1. Madigan will talk over terms for renewal of contract this week.

"I have received no offers from Portland or any other western place," he declared. He stated he had no preference, and indicated he is satisfied at St. Mary's.

LEW TENDLER IS HANDED BEATING

Towel Tossed In Ring Ends Bout In Fifth Round As Zivic Wins

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20—Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh, left-hooked his way one step nearer the title left open by Benny Leonard last night when after 2 minutes and 48 seconds of the fifth round, he forced the seconds of Lew Tendler of Philadelphia to toss a towel into the ring as token of defeat.

The wet rag came hurtling into the arena at the count of three on Tendler's second knockdown of the round. He had been leading the round until Zivic sent him sprawling with a left hook. There was no doubt of the power behind that punch as Lew lay on his knees swaying until at the count of seven he arose, again to be bludgeoned down. Then Jack Reisfield, Tendler's friend since boyhood, threw the sopping rag into the ring.

In the third Tendler slipped to the floor for a second after a clinch but was up in a flash. Tendler fought at 138 pounds and Zivic at 141. After the fight, Zivic's manager announced that Jimmy De Forest would be engaged to bring Zivic down to 135 pounds.

TO-NIGHT'S CARD

Fight fans who like to see scrappers sleeping on canvas may realize their ambitions tonight when a card made up of hard-hitting, slugging boys is presented at Jack Doyle's Vernon arena. Joe Schlocker and Pat Mills are down for ten rounds in the main event, although many ringworms expect the battle to end before the tenth round is reached. Schlocker is a former L. A. A. C. lightweight star, while Mills hails from England.

The semi-windup brings Ad Allegrini, national amateur middleweight champion, and Billy Vincent together for six rounds. Allegrini was kept out of the Olympics by reason of a broken hand. Young Farrell and George Etchell are booked for the special spot, six rounds. Bud Bercot and Benny Palmer are down for four rounds, and Jimmy Laventhal and Tod Adams open the show with four rounds of milling.

NIGHT COUGH QUICKLY RELIEVED

This is the substance of a letter received from H. W. Webb, Quincy, Ill., "I coughed a great deal, especially at night. Tried almost everything and have found nothing to equal FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND. One dose relieved my cough and I rested well all night." One of the largest selling cough medicine in the World. Contains no opiates. Safe for children. Insist upon Foley's. Refuse substitutes.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP by FAIR PLAY

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—By now it has dawned upon the minds of the big promoters that this Oville Chapdelaine, otherwise known as Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., is a middleweight of some considerable ability. There is an earnest plot on foot to have this young man meet Harry Greb, the middleweight champion, at some date to be fixed. But if Greb maintains the attitude he has taken toward Delaney in the past year it will take a lot of dickering to get him into the ring with Jack.

Greb, it would seem, is smarter than most people. He was ducking Delaney at a time when everyone wondered why he was so elusive in his attitude.

The crowd that saw Tiger Flowers of Atlanta run into Delaney's right fist at the Madison Square Garden Friday night and then curl up in the soundest nap a pug has taken on a ring floor at the Garden in a long time, now have a higher opinion of the middleweight king's judgment than they did have.

It was a big fight at the Garden, one of those typical metropolitan fight nights when from all strata of society come those who like to see a good fight. They were turning 'em away half an hour before the first bout started and the interior of the Garden by the time Delaney and Flowers climbed through the ropes was bulging from the ground floor to the roof with nearly 14,000 spectators.

Interest was keen and the general belief was that the Tigerish scrapper from Dixie would cut his white opponent into strips and ribbons. But this should be recorded—not all the wise money was placed on Flowers. A lot of it was at odds of 2 to 1, even 3 to 1.

But there was a little inside crowd who appeared to be taking all the Flowers money they could find. The reason why was related to the writer shortly before the battle. It seems, at least this is the way the story went, that Tiger went to Philly to meet Jack Townsend, another negro fighter, a second rater, and that before the fight Flowers told Townsend it would be merely a nice friendly match and so to take it easy.

Townsend is alleged to have said that this suited him. Hose came in at Flowers when the bout started pretty wide open. And the first thing he knew he got two wallops on the chin that sent him down for a count. When he got up Townsend's head had cleared and he was mad clean through.

"Ah don't call that no friendly bout," he remarked. With that he waded into Flowers, according to the yarn, and gave him a merry pasting.

BETTER BUILT HOMES—Not Merely Houses

A Home that never grows old

This Spanish home embodies the same standard type of architecture that is found in homes costing twice as much. Our price includes heaviest framing materials, oak flooring in the principal rooms, plastering thruout and cement work. We believe the price we ask is 20% under the regular cost of construction.

The home contains a living room, dining room with beautiful buffet, kitchen with cupboards, sink, cooler, spice cabinet and built-in ironing board, a rear screen porch and a breakfast nook with Pullman seats and table, two bedrooms with closets, a bathroom with linen cabinets and medicine cabinet and a hall with storage closet and linen closet. The plan is shown in our 50c book of designs.

OF BUILDING PERMITS ARE TAKEN OUT IN THE NORTHWEST SECTION?

Right on Glen Oaks Blvd., (formerly Fourth St.,) and Allen, right on car line, close to school and within stone's throw of big 4-store building with 4 apartments overhead. Here you have two houses on one lot. Dandy modern little house in rear renting for $25 unfurnished, and 4-room modern house in front.

You can make money on these 2 houses, as they will more than pay for themselves, $6500, $3250 cash, balance $45 per month including interest.

Why wait for a vacant lot to increase in value, when here you have property that is paying for itself, and is ever increasing in value. A look into the future will see P. E. tracks lowered and 40-ft. boulevard from Burbank to Pasadena, which will surely make this property business.

A COUGH REMEDY WITHOUT OPIATES

Many cough preparations contain some one or more harmful drugs which are added to take the place of opiates. None of these narcotic substitutes have ever been used in FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND. The name of every ingredient is plainly printed on every carton. You know what you are taking when you take Foley's. It clings to the throat. Good for old and young. You have a cough, why not try it. Refuse substitutes.

OUTLINE PROGRAM FOR DEVELOPMENT

City Council, Host at Forum Dinner, Gives Suggestions For City's Benefit

liam G. Lauderdale, Arthur Campbell, Fred Deal, George Lyons, Harry MacBain, W. L. Truitt and Dr. T. C. Young.

Presents Officials

Councilmen and city officials introduced by Mayor Robinson were: Councilman S. A. Davis, C. E. Kimlin, S. S. Gilhuly, and Harry MacBain; A. J. Van Wie, city clerk; H. C. Saulsberry, city controller; John D. Fraser, chief of police; J. C. Sherer, city treasurer; Ray L. Morrow, city attorney; J. F. Johannsen, city engineer; H. C. Vandewater, building superintendent; A. H. Lankford, fire chief; Dr. G. Kaemmerling, city physician; F. E. Dickson, assistant purchasing agent, and Peter Diederich, superintendent of plant and production.

Glendalians who were present at the dinner had an opportunity to gain a good idea of the amount of work involved in putting in Glendale's new sewer system, when motion pictures showing the progress and process of the work were displayed. Two reels of pictures, ranging from panoramas to closeups, from the turning of the first shovelful of earth by Mayor Robinson to laying the large pipes in the ocean, were displayed. R. F. Brown, engineer with Burns, McDonald & Smith, consulting engineers for the city in the sewer work, explained the pictures.

Musical Numbers

Joseph E. Joseph, tenor soloist, delighted the guests with four selections. His first number was "My Lady Moon," singing "O Sole Mio" as an encore. His second group was "Rose in the Bud" and "Love Planted a Rose." Miss May Orcutt was accompanist.

Orchestra selections were rendered by a group from the Glendale Symphony orchestra, composed of W. A. Stoll, violin, Henry Rafael, violin, Miss Marie Bachman, piano, W. V. Anderson, flute, and Lloyd Knapp, cello. The community singing was led by R. Ernest Tucker, with Mrs. George Lyons at the piano.

Poet Pleases

James Foley, poet and humorist, mingled philosophy and humor to the delight of all the guests. His naive manner of speaking, touching lightly on some subjects, and driving home bits of wisdom with a sprinkle of wit, won for him the hearty plaudits of the diners. He was greeted with applause when he said that for the first time in his life he had witnessed a public servant fittingly awarded for his services, in referring to the gift presented to Mr. Chobe.

The two important factors in the upbuilding of the world, Mr. Foley said, are truth and enthusiasm. There is nothing new that is true, and nothing true that is new, he said. During the ages that have passed since the first utterance of the Golden Rule, civilization has not added any more to that simple phrase which rules the world, he said.

Grade Crossing Gets Glendale's Attention

An application will be forwarded to the State Railroad commission on Thursday by the city of Glendale, asking that the Cerritos avenue crossing of the Pacific Electric tracks be reopened and maintained henceforth as a public highway, Virgil B. Stone, city manager, announced today.

This crossing was closed at midnight, January 18, by a Pacific Electric crew, and the road barricaded, according to Mr. Stone, on the expiration of a two-year authorization from the commission to operate a street crossing there. The reason assigned by Mr. Stone for the two-year limitation is the representation made at that time, that within two years the city of Los Angeles would open a street somewhere south of the Southern Pacific railroad tracks.

A crossing has been opened at Glenhurst boulevard, and the contention of the Pacific Electric is that it now makes the Gardena avenue crossing unnecessary. Mr. Stone's contention, on the other hand, is that conditions have changed and both crossings now are necessary.

HOMER MILLER IS ACCUSED OF THEFT

Glendale Man, Employe of Dental Company, Not Worried, He Says

Charges of embezzlement against Homer B. Miller, Glendale man, brought by the California Dental Supply Co. of Los Angeles, will not be dropped as far as he is concerned, Dr. E. G. Howard, president of the company, said today. Miller, who was arraigned before Justice Marchetti late yesterday on a specific charge of forgery, is said to have confessed defalcations totaling $40,000 to Dr. Howard and later to Deputy District Attorney Hammer. He has been employed as bookkeeper at the dental supply house for nearly fifteen years, it was stated.

Miller refused to comment on the case when he was interviewed at his spacious new hillside home at Columbus place and Cumberland road today. He was at liberty on his own recognizance following his arraignment before Justice Marchetti, a fact which gave rise to the rumor that the dental company would not further prosecute the charge.

Accused Not Worried

"I am not at all worried," was all Miller would say. "I have not even gone to the trouble of hiring an attorney, maybe I will later. If the charges were as serious as made out to be, I surely wouldn't be treating them so lightly."

Asked if he believed the charges would be dropped Miller said he had no idea. He also said he did not know whether he has been dismissed from the employ of the company he is alleged to have embezzled or not.

"If I have been, I have not been notified of the fact," he said.

"Prosecution of the case is up to the district attorney, but as far as I am concerned the charges will not be dismissed," Dr. Howard said.

Alleged Confession

According to the alleged confession given to Dr. Howard and Deputy District Attorney Hammer, Miller embezzled the money over a period of four to five years. Much of it he used on his family and in real estate investments, it is said. As bookkeeper of the company, Miller made out checks on which he left the name of the payee blank and had them signed by Roswell P. Annin, secretary-treasurer. Instead of making the checks payable to creditors of the company as supposed by Annin, Miller would fill them in to cash, he is said to have confessed. The specific charge on which the bookkeeper was arraigned was forgery of a check for $1620. Dr. Howard signed the complaint.

In New Residence

The Millers moved into their spacious new home north of Kenneth road in the exclusive foothill district, just two weeks ago. Prior to that time they had resided at 434 Burchett street. The house, one of the finest and most attractive in the section, stands out boldly against the hills at the northwest corner of Cumberland road and Columbus drive. It was here that Miller, his wife and two children awaited today, confident that no further action would be taken against him.

Miller has a number of friends in Glendale and, it is said, they are seeking to get him out of his difficulty with the dental company. He has resided here for a number of years.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Advertisement.
